

NORTH COUNTRY HEALTHCARE FACT SHEET

HISTORY

North Country HealthCare is the primary community health center in the region. North Country's roots reach back to the Flagstaff Community Free Clinic, which was founded in 1991 by a small group of local doctors and nurses, health and human service representatives and consumers who were concerned about the large number of uninsured people who were going to the emergency room for care because they had no medical home. In 1996, the clinic transitioned from a volunteer organization into a state and federally funded community health center. Today, North Country HealthCare serves 12 communities across northern Arizona, providing quality medical care to all while building healthier communities.
